

A vintage color illustration of a steamship leaving Luss on Loch Lomond. The steamship, with a red and white striped funnel and a black smokestack, is moving towards the right, leaving a white wake. In the foreground, a small red rowing boat with three people is on the left. The background features a large, forested hill on the left and a smaller boat on the right. The sky is blue with white clouds. The water is dark blue with white foam from the ship's wake. The overall style is that of a vintage postcard or travel brochure illustration.
